Excerpt: .We wonder sometimes what it is that makes people catch fevers, fall ill, and die. It is CHIEFLY the want of fresh air. If we wish to be free from Sickness, we should every morning open the windows, let out the bad, close air, and let in the good, pure air. People would add years to their lives if they would open their windows every day. Some boys are afraid of dogs, some of cows, and some of big boys that run after them to hit them; but they ought to be more afraid of bad air than of all the dogs and cows and big boys in the world, as it will certainly do them more harm. When we are in a close room which is full of people, we often feel faint and ill. What makes us feel so weak and bad? It is the want of fresh air. The poor English in the Black Hole in India first felt faint, then they fainted away, and before the morning came nearly all of them were dead. But besides air which is bad from too many people breathing it, we are in danger from air that is poisoned from bad drains and CESSPOOLS. How do we know when we are breathing bad air of this kind? We can tell it by its bad smell. It is therefore a Dangerous thing to live in a place where there are bad drains and pools of water...
